WARREN'S ADDRESS—
Stand! the ground's your own, my brave!
Will ye give it up to slaves?
Will ye look for greener graves?
Hope ye mercy still?
What's the mercy despots feel?
Hear it in that battle peal!
Read it on your bristling steel!
Ask it—yet who will!

Fear ye foes who kill for hire?
Will ye to your homes retire?
Look behind you! they're afoot
And before you, see
Who have done it: From the vole
On they come! and will ye quail?
Lead on rain and iron hail
Let their welcome be!

In the God of battle trust!
Die we may—and die we must!
But, O, where can dust to dust
Be consigned so well
As where heaven's dews shall shed
On the martyred patriot's bed,
And the rocks shall raise their head
Of his deeds to tell.

—John Pierpont.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—Treating Meat.
As soon as meat is brought into the house, take it out of the wrapping paper, wipe with a damp cloth, cut away any part discolored by a meat hook and set away in a cool place.

Mustard.
Homemade mustard should always be mixed with boiling water, and a little salt should be added to it so it will not dry and cake in the mustard dish.

Headache.
Sometimes a violent headache may be relieved in a few minutes by applying a Turkish towel wrung out of hot water to the back of the neck.

Good For Plants.
Cold tea should never be thrown away, but should be fed to the plants.

Meat Stock.
Meat stock, used instead of water in meat sauces, gravies and stews, makes them richer. By boiling meat in stock, the stock itself is enriched.

OBSERVE BIRTHDAY OF W. E. HALL—
W. E. Hall of this city, who is taking treatment at the Woodmen Sanitarium at Woodmen, Colo., had a birthday today and if the mails are on time to the west, he has received a shower of birthday post cards from his relatives and friends in Dixon and vicinity.

Mother and Daughter Banquet Great Success

I love to feel that in the heavens above,
The angels whispering to one another,
Can find among their burning words of love
No name so beautiful as that of Mother.

—Edgar Allan Poe.

The above beautiful sentiment provided the spirit of those attending the Mother and Daughter Banquet held at the Methodist church last evening. The banquet was attended by two hundred and fifty-seven, mothers and daughters in the third banquet held in as many years and was a most gratifying success. Dr. A. S. Moore, pastor of the church inaugurated the movement here three years ago, when he noted the success of the Father and Son banquets, and he advanced the idea that the mothers and daughters would derive as much pleasure and profit from the banquets as the gentlemen did and this is so for the banquet is more largely attended each year.

The tables were most attractive in fine white linen and silver, and the fragrance and daintiness of sweet peas and ferns added the final touch of beauty, the blossoms in pink and mauve bringing the note of Spring to the attention of all. The banquet was elaborate and tempting and was served by the men of the church.

Excellent music was furnished by the Sunday school orchestra and Mrs. Aubrey Shannon Moore was the toastmistress, filling the chair with graciousness and tact.

The program consisted of a piano solo by Miss Edith Gramp, which pleased so well that an encore was demanded, and supplied.

"Our Mothers," by Miss Dorothy Hoover was very well given, and told the daughter's view of life and mother in a clear and comprehensive manner.

"Our Daughters" was the toast in answer to Miss Hoover's toast, and this was by Mrs. Edward Shawger, and was given beautifully, as only a mother COULD give it. This was followed by a delightful vocal solo by Miss Lois Keyes, with Miss Edith Gramp at the piano and Miss Annie Keyes playing the violin accompaniment.

The feature of the toasts for the evening was the address by Mrs. Robert Stephenson, wife of the pastor of the Halsted Street Institutional church of Chicago, one of the oldest churches in the city. Mrs. Stephenson addressed the gathering on "Our Privileges and Opportunities," and as she was thoroughly in love with her subject Mrs. Stephenson gave a wonderfully clear version of the young woman's place in the world today. She stressed greatly the advantage the girl of today has and advised them to keep their standards high, and thus make for the betterment of all, for just as the standard is set by the women and the girls today, so will it be kept. A man will always rise to what a woman expects of him, if the woman is firm, said this wise and good woman speaking from her broad experience—and the standards of morality, spirituality, patriotism, everything that constructs and uplifts, will be found, if traced back, to its source, womanhood, and will be just as high as she holds them. Do not be afraid to set your standards and your ideals high—they will be met, said Mrs. Stephenson. The girl of today must set her ideals and her standards for as well as the mother of tomorrow and she is a mighty factor in the world today. Never more true the saying, "The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world." Mother love and devotion is recognized as one of the most beautiful and powerful influences in the world. Keep the standard high and recognize opportunities and privileges so wonderfully bestowed through Divine generosity.

At the close of Mrs. Stephenson's tribute to womanhood, the benediction was given, closing a thoroughly delightful evening. The committees serving in the affair are as follows:
Program—Miss Velma Fay White, Miss Irma Gross, Rev. A. S. Moore. Reservation and Advertising—Mrs. L. R. Clingman, Mrs. Frank Ware, Miss Eunice Thompson.
Banquet—R. C. Caughey, O. G.

Political Meeting Next Monday Night

A meeting will be held next Monday evening, March 31, in the Congregational church at Amboy, under the joint auspices of the Woman's Club and the Commercial Club, at which Hon. John P. Devine of Dixon will speak, not in the interest of any particular candidate, but in explanation of the platform and principles of the Democratic party. A similar meeting will be held early in May, at which a Republican speaker, whose name will be announced later, will explain what the Republican party stands for. These meetings are open to the public and everyone is invited.

The two organizations agreed upon this plan last year when the Women's Club was preparing its annual program, for the benefit of all intelligent voters seeking enlightenment on what questions are at issue between the two parties. The meetings are strictly non-partisan so far as the two clubs sponsoring them are concerned, both parties being treated exactly alike. They are planned in the interest of fair play.

ATTENDED O. E. S. MEETING AT FRANKLIN

Garnet Chapter O. E. S. held another pleasant meeting Monday afternoon and evening. At 6 o'clock, a scrumptious supper was served, followed by a program, comprising, piano solo, Mrs. Carl Spangler; reading, Mrs. H. W. Dysart; cornet solo, Mrs. Della Olmstead; vocal trio, Misses Alice Thornton and Elcie Lott, and Mrs. Olmstead; piano duet, Mesdames Olmstead and Moore. There were over one hundred guests present, including Miss Jessie Clover, matron of Ashton, and Mrs. Fannie Frank, matron of Dixon.—Franklin Reporter.

HOW ABOUT ALL OF US?

The suggestion made lately by Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford university, that college professors ought not to allow themselves to get into a rut, is one that will bear repetition.

Perhaps there is something in the nature of their work which subjects professors to this fossilizing process. Again it may be that the general public somewhat exaggerates the extent to which college teachers get out of touch with what is going on in the world. The comic paper pictures of bespectacled professors absentmindedly engaged in some ludicrous task may have aided in keeping alive this idea.

But is it only the teacher who ought to be warned against getting into a rut, and urged to take some interest in things outside his own narrow work? In one way or another doesn't this apply to all sorts of men and women in all walks of life?

Doesn't it apply with particular emphasis to great numbers of citizens in the way in which they discharge their civic duties? It is so easy to get into the rut of voting without regard to whether the candidate is especially qualified for the office he is seeking. This so-called ballot-rut is a deep and wide one and many of us slip into it before we are aware of the danger which lurks in it.

It is so easy to fall into the rut of accepting as a candidate the individual who makes the biggest noise about his self-appraised qualifications. It is so easy to go from one election to another voting in this same kind of rut or not voting at all. This is the very thing which the unqualified candidate makes use of in getting himself and his life elected. Confident in his belief that the voter will mark his ballot in the habitual way, this political self-seeker makes the usual noise about his qualifications and rides into office, because the voter would not get out of the rut.

Now there are men in every congressional district in this country who are by training and inherent fitness qualified to discharge whatever political duties may be given them. Such men are to be found in every district in this state. But they are not mere political noisemakers. There are not men who trust themselves forward. They will serve gladly and be a credit to this great commonwealth.

But such men must be sought out. The citizens must get out of their rut and spare no efforts to find these men to run for office. When we have found and elected such men we shall have less reason to complain about what is done or left undone at Washington, at Springfield and elsewhere.

MERCURY.

Radio station WJAZ, in Chicago, recently asked for a straw vote by its listeners, on the subject of modifying the Volstead act. Forty-seven thousand paid telegrams were received in 24 hours, from every state, from farm and city, rich and poor.

This indicates that prohibition is as live a subject as a wildcat. Also the amazing number of telegrams received by WJAZ must make an editor feel old-fashioned when he sends a reporter out to stop 50 people on the main street and take a straw-vote.

IMITATIONS.

Uncle Sam has 20,000 genuine sealskins—and has trouble selling them. A committee of experts recommends to Secretary Hoover that educational campaigns be conducted to teach women the "merits" of real seal fur. The government idea seems to be that women don't want genuine seals, preferring "Hudson seal"—dyed muskrat.

MAPLE.

Troubles come so fast they tread on each other's heels in these hectic times. Now comes the sad news that the 1924 maple sirup crop will be a failure in most places.

To get good maple sirup "sugaring season"

ground must be well frozen, then snow, then an alternating of sharp nights and thawing days—to send the sap shooting up with a rush. This winter has been against good sugaring conditions.

Small wonder, we talk so much about the weather, considering its virtual dictatorship over our daily lives and prosperity.

IDLE.

A tax of 900 million dollars a year could be realized by putting a special levy of one per cent a year on the value of unused land in the United States and Alaska. So claims Congressman Griffen, introducing a bill for that purpose.

Griffen believes that his bill would not only bring in a lot of revenue, it'd also force into use unproductive lands held for speculation. The usual objection to such a tax is that it can't be evaded by passing it on to consumers.

SWEET SINGER OF ALAMO.

This is open season for spring poets. Hunting laws vary, but in most states the bag limit is not more than two a day.

Memory turns backward at this time of year. Older readers will recall James B. Elmore, "the sweet singer of Alamo, Ind." Jim was the master poet of his generation. We reprint the spring poem that skyrocketed him into national fame, years ago:

In the spring of the year,
When the blood is too thick,
There is nothing so rare
As the sassafras stick.
It cleans up the liver,
It strengthens the heart,
And to the whole system
New life doth impart.

Sassafras, oh, sassafras!
Thou art the stuff for me.
And in the spring I love to sing,
Sweet sassafras, of thee.

We have read of spring "poems," but never one that excellent Jim's gem. Its tender sentiment, its profound understanding, its understanding, it's universal humor appeal place it for all time on a pinnacle by itself.

Jim Elmore, master of delicate sentiment, became so famous in his generation that he was called on to write for the telegraph wires, about leading news events.

Here's one verse from his poem, "The Great Monon Wreck":

And yonder in the wreck I see
A man that's pinioned down by the knee,
And hear him calmly for to say,
"Cut, oh, cut my leg away!"

To the prohibition movement, Jim contributed a gem:

And he who drinks the fiery cup
Will come to saddest woes;
For, as he takes each dainty sip,
'Twill blossom on his nose.

Elmore was unique among the general run of poets, in that his poems actually contained ideas—thought. How do you like his work? It was so popular, it made him rich and famous. Yes, literature is a peculiar game.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

No. 12—SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE

The patent-leather cat, rubber dog and wooden duck were arguing

"Oh, dear!" said the napkin rabbit. "Doofunny Land would be a grand place if it were not for that dreadful rubber dog."

"And I think that it would be a fine place if it were not for that awful cat," squeaked the little tin mouse.

"Every time I move, I seem to run into him, and he has such terrible eyes and long spiky whiskers. I get paralyzed with fright, so I do."

"If you want to know what real trouble it," croaked a hoarse voice. "Just look at me. I am still shivering. I just hopped past that old wooden waddle duck and he snapped at me with his old scissor bill. I thought when I came to Doofunny Land that I should be safe. But it seems that I was mistaken. Ducks are far, far fiercer than dogs and cats," said the puffy cotton frog.

Mister Fuzz Wuzz, the pipe-cleaner man turned to the Twins.

"Do you hear that?" he said. "It's time I was putting an end to all this nonsense. If Doofunny can't be a peaceful place—what is the use of it, I'd like to know?"

"Yes, I should like to know, too," agreed Nancy. "The Fairy Queen told us that Doofunny Land was a funny place."

"And so it should be—the merriest place in all Fairyland. Come! I have an idea. What's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander."

The Twins followed him, and by and by he came to the place where the teddy bear was.

"Busy," Mister Bear?" asked Mr. Fuzz Wuzz.

"Nup," said the bear. "Not doing a thing."

"Well, then," said the little man.

AMUSEMENTS

NEW BARITONE WITH THE SAN CARLO GRAND OPERA

When local opera patrons attend the performances of the San Carlo Grand Opera company, which comes to the Auditorium Theater for a week's engagement on March 31st, they will be given the pleasure of hearing a new baritone, who is making his initial appearance in that city. The new singer in question is Mario Basiola, an importation from Italy last fall, and an artist whose singing aroused the New York, Boston, Philadelphia and other large town critics to declare that he is one of the greatest of all baritones ever sent out from Italy's sunny shores.

It was while Mr. Gallo was abroad, that he found Basiola, who had an extensive knowledge of one of Italy's many small opera organizations. He immediately engaged him for American presentation, and after the first performance in which Basiola appeared, Mr. Gallo's judgment was verified by the musical critics.

Probably Basiola's greatest success is his work in Rigoletto, in which he will be heard here on Wednesday evening, April 2nd, with a noted cast including Consuelo Escobar, coloratura, Stella DeMette, Demetrio Onofrei, the sensational young Euphonia tenor, Pietro DeBasi and others.

In the New York presentation of this opera, when Basiola made his debut, he and Mme. Josephine Lucas were compelled to repeat the "Piangi Fanciulla" three times before proceeding with the opera, while his work in the ough survey of the beautiful Studebaker theater and has reported that it is perfectly constructed to broadcast the funniest stage play in America. Microphones will be installed in various parts of the playhouse so that every word spoken on the stage, the orchestra selections and the gayety of the audience will be recorded and waited to the listeners.

"Abie's Irish Rose" is the first play in more than a year in Chicago to consent to presenting the entire play to radio enthusiasts. Miss Anne Nichols, its author and owner, agreed to the arrangement because she is an ardent radio fan. She will listen-in at her New York home.

More than 150,000 persons have seen "Abie" in Chicago and about 3,000,000 have seen it in various parts of America. It is believed that many of these will like to "see" it again over the radio.

"Abie's Irish Rose" is considered the greatest stage success of all time. It is a swiftly moving comedy telling of the difficulties of a Jewish boy and an Irish girl whose marriage disturbs two irate fathers. The bitterness of the two fond parents of the children is intermingled with the most humorous situations and dialogue ever conceived.

In the excellent company are Joseph Greenwald as Solomon Levy; Stanley Price as Abie; Anne Liza Silbert as Mrs. Isaac Cohen; Harry Marks Stewart as Mr. Cohen; Martha Kretz as Rosemary Murphy; Harry Garrity portrays her father; Tom Burroughs is the priest and Bertram Marburgh is the rabbi. Remember the night—Tuesday, April 1, at 8:30. Tune in and have the time of your life.

Scarboro.—Mrs. Guy Levy visited
Sunday at the P. C. Schoenholz home.

Levi Lewis and wife visited Sunday at the J. B. Cave home.

Orley Webber and mother of Rochelle spent a few days last week at the J. B. Cave home. They will move to Mt. Vernon soon where they have purchased a home. Mr. Webber will be in the employ of the shoe factory.

Howard Ackland of Viola was in town Wednesday.

L. A. Lutz of Compton was in town
Wednesday.

Holdren Olson passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Joe Clay-tons, March 22, after a brief illness.
Mr. Olson was born in October, 1851, and most of his life was spent in Willow Creek township. Funeral services were held in the Scarboro church Wednesday, March 25, conducted by Rev. Winter. Burial was at the Twin Grove cemetery in the family lot.

P. C. Schoenholz is spending a few days in the Guy Levy home at Steward.

T. C. Kelley of Rochelle was in town Monday.

The shipper's association consigned
a shipment of hogs to the Chicago market Monday.

Nels Larson returned Tuesday after spending a few days with his family at Brett, Iowa.

W. Wagner, E. Whitsell, E. Rees,

TO THE VOTERS

The time is here when we should have smooth, safe and well constructed roads to take care of the enormous traffic which is passing over them.

You can see for yourself the roads are in a very bad condition at present, and will take a lot of hard work and good management to get them all in good condition this season.

Talk of building permanent roads this summer is out of the question, so far as I can see, as it means more tax. Less taxes sounds good to me and also good, smooth roads, and I think with good management and a well arranged system to this road building, good highways may be had without further expense.

How many of us ever stop and consider what our commissioner of highways means to us? I think the time is not far off when anyone seeking this responsible position will be subject to an examination before being allowed to enter the race, to prove his qualifications.

Four years will have to pass before you get another chance to decide or vote on highway commissioner for Dixon township.

All roads should be built in the middle of the highway, regardless of any interference, such as banks, brush, trees, etc. All weeds and brush should be kept down to give a clear view for driving, also to avoid snow from piling in the roads.

All culverts or bridges should be 16 to 22 ft. in width, depending on location, and no side water drainage ditch closer than 25 feet from center of road, if possible to do so.

If all roads could be put in good condition this season, I cannot see but what some tarva roads can be put in next year, say three to five miles each year, and in a few years all of our main traveled roads would be in for good, with the exception of slight repairs when needed. I prefer tarva in preference to hard-surfaced roads for this reason: The ice and frost do not stick so tight to it, easier on horses, less dangerous for car driving and the cost is less in construction and repair.

In building gravel roads I would think the crusher should be used always, so as not to have large stone scattered on top; also to get gravel dressing uniform enough to oil.

Too much sand, clay, loam or strilings from a pit should never be used for dressing as it causes pockets and chuck holes, and that means re-surfacing and more expense.

I think the ladies should take more interest in all elections than they do, then if their choice is defeated they know circumstances was the reason.

Voters, you will have four candidates to pick from for your road man April 1st. I do not wish to praise myself too much, but will say that if I am your choice on judgment day, I will do my best to never cause you regrets.
I intend to fulfill the required duties of this position or know the reason why, and the public will be given a clearer view of the management than heretofore. Economy should be used in all dealings in a businesslike way, and a separate account of all expenditures for future review.

Very truly yours,

William H. DePuy.

Candidate for Commissioner of Highways, Dixon Township.

GETTING CUSTOMERS--- and KEEPING THEM

Selling a customer once isn't much of a trick. Making a customer by selling him the right things is what we're interested in.

So in selling you clothes—that's the important thing—the thing we consider first. That's why our prices have to be fair—our clothing has to be good.

If you've been one of our clothing customers regularly, you'll want to come back, we're sure. If you haven't been, start this spring.

Good Suits $29.50, $35, $45, $60

We'll help you buy—not try to sell you. We're interested in seeing that you get the right style, the most suitable pattern—we're here to give you what you want—good clothing, fairly priced, properly styled, carefully made.

Spend a half hour with us looking over the new spring suits. Do it now while our selection is as its best.

Steer Meat vs. Cow Meat

Native corn-fed steer meat is of fine, firm, smooth texture and bright, fresh, red color inter-mixed with fine streaks of white fat, and will retain the impression of finger after it is removed. Cow beef is a darker red than steer beef. The fat is yellow, and not comparable to steer beef in quality. Any beef that is pale and deep purple, that is wet and flabby, or has a sickly smell should be avoided. Old or tough beef is elastic to the touch and will not retain a finger print. We cut only native corn-fed steer meat. More nourishing. Cooks quicker.

DIXON'S LEADING MARKET

SAY OGLE COUNTY HAS HAD SHARE OF HONOR; THEN SOME

Whiteside Co. Man is Winning Favor Upon That Score, Too.

The contest for the Republican nomination for Congressman to succeed Honorable John C. McKenzie is waxing warm throughout the Thirteenth District with William E. Murray, of Rock Falls, Whiteside County's candidate, now leading the field. That Murray will carry his own county, Carroll county and Jo Daviess county is conceded as is the fact that he will go out of Lee county with a larger vote than any other candidate.

There are five candidates in the field. Stephenson county, however, is badly divided owing to the fact that she has two capable men in the running, while throughout the district there is a great deal of complaint against Ogle county, which has, it is claimed, given more than her share of jobs during the past decade. In that county Mr. Murray has a number of warm supporters who are working for his nomination and they declare that second to their home candidates will be Murray. Owing to the fact that Ogle county is represented in many public offices, there is an inclination among the fair-minded people of that county to favor the nomination of Murray with a spirit of fair play in passing around the jobs. Since 1881, Ogle county has furnished two of the three congressmen from this district.

Robert R. Hitt and Col. Frank O. Lowden, Col. Lowden also served as governor for four years. At the present time Judge Cartwright of Ogle county is serving on the supreme court bench and William J. Emerson is the nominee for judge on the circuit bench. United States Senator McCormick's home is in Ogle county. M. E. Shriver of Polo, Ogle county, is a candidate at the primary for delegate to the national republican convention. As a result of the many public office favors that have been conferred on Ogle county men, the candidacy of the Ogle county candidate is not meeting with much encouragement from other counties of the district. Many of the Ogle county voters are throwing their support to Mr. Murray because they believe that Whiteside county is entitled to the office. The Ogle County Republican, a weekly newspaper, commenting on the fairness of giving the nomination to Whiteside county, says:

"In the Thirteenth Illinois there seems to be no lack of candidates to succeed Mr. McKenzie. It has been noted that Ogle county has been fortunate in getting its men public office, as shown by Judge Cartwright and Senator McCormick in prominent places and Baker, Crowell, Emerson and Shriver as candidates, also Lowden as governor for one term with possibly other honors in store. During the last 70 years, the number

Sugar Coated Cod Liver Oil Tablets Put on Flesh and Build Them Up.

In just a few days—quicker than you ever dreamt of—these wonderful flesh making tablets called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets will start to help any weak, thin undernourished little one.

After sickness and where rickets are suspected they are especially valuable. No need to give them any more nasty Cod Liver Oil—these tablets are made to take the place of that good but evil smelling, stomach upsetting medicine and they surely do it. They do put on flesh.

Ask Rowland's Pharmacy or any druggist for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets—as easy to take as candy and not at all expensive—60 tablets 60 cents. Get McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Tablets.—Adv.

ently loyal to the nominee of the party. While not a believer in the system of passing the office around in regular rotation to allow man to write M. C. after his name with little regard to his being what the name implies, a representative, I am not an advocate of ignoring able men because they do not live in some favored location. I understand that Whiteside this year offers for the place one whose services at the national capital have given exceptional advantages and who would enter the house with a knowledge of the methods of congress and the departments and officials and it would seem but fair that the other counties should show appreciation of past favors and at the same time be sure of good service.

The fair minded representative Republicans of Lee county seem to be inclined to join hand with Whiteside county in putting the Whiteside county man across due to the fact that both counties are in the same senatorial district which will give Whiteside county a chance to reciprocate in the near future.—Adv.

COLN'S STATUE MAY BE LOCATED ON I-WAY NEAR DIXON

Effort Being Made to Secure One of Barnard's Busts.

An effort to have one of the Barnard foot statues of Lincoln, a picture which appeared in Thursday evening's Telegraph, placed along the Lincoln Highway at Dixon is being made. It is being pointed out that Dixon is the only city along the highway with which the martyred president had personal touch, stories which recently appeared in the Chicago Daily News and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, as follows:

Chicago Daily News: That Abraham Lincoln at 24 was a soldier in the Black Hawk Indian war and did not duty in a company of mounted rangers is probably not so generally known as some other facts about his early career. Col. Zachary Taylor, later president, was commandant at Ft. Crawford, Prairie du Chien, Wis., in the Black Hawk war and under him as Captain Lee's company of mounted rangers, in which Abraham Lincoln was enlisted as a private, says a Prairie du Chien (Wis.) letter to the New York World. Jefferson Davis was a lieutenant on the staff of Col. Taylor at the fort.

In the weeks following the assignment of the mounted rangers to scout duty Lincoln's company saw no fighting. Yet on the march and in camp he young, kindly, fun-making Abraham made himself so popular with his companions that after Black Hawk had been sent down the river from Ft. Crawford as a prisoner under the escort of Jefferson Davis, and the volunteer companies had been mustered at, Lincoln returned to his home in New Salem high in favor with comrades and home folks. They insisted upon afterwards on nominating him for the state legislature. He was defeated, but received New Salem's unanimous vote.

Ridiculed Cass as "Hero." Sixteen years later, when Zachary Taylor was candidate for president and extravagant claims for military honors were set up by Gen. Lewis Cass, democratic candidate against him, Lincoln, an ardent supporter of Taylor, ridiculed the pretensions of Cass to heroism in a campaign speech in Congress. To his military prowess in the Black Hawk war he alluded by saying:

"By the way, Mr. Speaker, did you know that I am a military hero? Yes, sir, in the days of the Black Hawk war I fought, bled and came away, speaking of Gen. Cass' career reminds me of my own. I was not at Sullyman's defeat, but I was about as near as Cass was to Hull's surrender. And, like him, I saw the place very soon afterward. It is quite certain I did not break my sword, for I had none to break; but I bent my musket by accident. If Gen. Cass went in advance of me in picking whortleberries I guess I surpassed him in charging on the wild onions. If he saw any live fighting Indians it was more than I did; but I had a good many bloody struggles with the mosquitoes, and, although I never fainted for loss of blood, I can truly say I was often very hungry. Mr. Speaker, if I should ever conclude to doff whatever our democratic friends may suppose there is a black robe and federalism about me and thereupon they shall take me up as their candidate for the presidency, I protest they shall not make fun of me as they have of Gen. Cass by attempting to write me into a military hero."

Got a Land Grant. Lincoln was given a quarter section of wild land in Iowa as reward for his services in the Black Hawk war. He furthermore formed a friendship in his military career with a comrade in the ranks, John T. Stuart, which brought him substantial aid later on when Stuart took him into law partnership.

It also should be noted of Lincoln's experience in the Indian war that the lieutenant, Robert Anderson, who mustered him into service was the Maj. Anderson who commanded Fort Sumter in '61. At an interview with President Lincoln just after the evacuation of Sumter, Maj. Anderson was surprised when the president inquired of him, "Major, do you ever remember meeting me before?" On Anderson replying that he had no recollection of having had the pleasure, Lincoln said:

"My memory is better than yours. You mustered me into the service of the United States in 1832 at Dixon's Ferry in the Black Hawk war."

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.—Did Jefferson Davis administer the oath of allegiance to Abraham Lincoln during the Black Hawk war? An interesting controversy has arisen regarding this incident. According to one historian, Gen. Winfield Scott, who stationed at Fort Snelling, sent two lieutenants of the regular army to Dixon to muster in the State militia companies that had tendered their services.

One of these officers was Maj. Anderson, who commanded Fort Sumter at the outbreak of the Civil War. The other was Jefferson Davis, afterward president of the Confederate States. It was Davis who mustered in the militia companies and, it is claimed, he administered the oath to Lincoln who had volunteered to fight the Indian marauders. Lincoln was first mustered into the service at the mouth of the Fox River on May 29, 1832, and he was a member of Capt. Elijah Lee's company. After the term of enlistment expired, Lincoln was again mustered into the service at Dixon and at the second period, had been commissioned Captain.

The Black Hawk War attracted many young men who were to become famous in later years when they entered the Civil War. These included Joseph E. Johnson, Albert Sidney Johnson, Gen. Hugh Brady, Gen. Henry Atkinson, Capt. V. S. Harney, Gen. Henry Dodge, Gen. George W. Jones, Gov. John Reynolds, Gen. E. D. Baker, Col. Zachary Taylor, Maj. J. T. Stuart and Col. Nathan Boone, son of Daniel Boone, the famous Kentucky pioneer.

State to Buy Blockhouse. The Illinois Legislature has appropriated $1000 to purchase a quarter of an acre of land upon which the blockhouse stood which was occupied by troops during the Black Hawk War. This blockhouse stood on the west bank of the Rock River. The Lincoln highway passes near it. There are thus two points upon this transcontinental road where Lincoln officiated, one at Dixon during the war with the Indians and the other at Gettysburg where he addressed the multitude on Sept. 19, 1863.

While Jefferson Davis was stationed in Illinois and on duty in the campaign against the redmen, he paid considerable attention to the daughter of Gen. Henry Dodge, afterward the Governor of Wisconsin and who also became United States Senator. The young woman, however, loved another, Henry Dement, also a young officer and who later became Colonel. After the Civil War, Davis, from his homestead at Beauvoir, Miss., wrote a letter of condolence to the widow of Col. Dement when he was apprised of his death which, in part, read as follows: "Of the many who will offer you condolence in your recent bereavement, there is not one who sympathizes more deeply with you than he who long years ago claimed the privilege of the sacred name of friend. Widely and long have we been separated, but your image has not been dimmed by time or distance. The gallantry and noble bearing of your deceased husband was known to all, who, like myself, were on the frontier of Illinois during the campaign against Black Hawk and, from your brother, Augustus, and your friend, Gen. Jones, I heard of him in after years. If you have preserved enough of the pleasant memories of one springtime to care for one who flitted with you over flowers of youth's happy garden, it will give me sincere gratification to hear from you."

Married Taylor's Daughter. Davis married the daughter of Gen. Zachary Taylor, afterward President of the United States. This, too, was a romance of the Black Hawk war. Gen. Taylor, who was a martinet, became incensed at Davis over the latter's attitude and vote during a court-martial, in which Taylor was interested. Unable to procure his consent to the marriage, Davis and Miss Taylor eloped to Kentucky. Shortly after the ceremony both were stricken with malarial fever. The illness was fatal to the bride and she died Sept. 15, 1835.

It is thus known that while Lincoln and Davis were in the wilderness along the Rock River, subduing the savages, both were lovers, the former dreaming of Ann Rutledge, who died at New Salem, Aug. 25, 1835, while Davis was courting Sarah Taylor.

Our cup companion, Mr. One Punch O'Goofy, is quartered at a tavern adjacent to the local railroad yards. Mr. O'Goofy finds it very hard to get up and on the tracks, amid much clanging of bells. Mr. O'Goofy, through force of habit, leaps from his bed every time he hears the clanging bells and begins shadow boxing.

The Ladies Aid will meet with Mrs. Anna Hecker for an all-day meeting, next Thursday, April 3.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

There will be some sensation at the Baptist church Sunday night, as the pastor will preach on some vital issues and have some "words that burn" for slackers and disloyal citizens. Some of the questions he will answer will be, "What shall be done with Bergdoll, the notorious slacker, when he arrives on American soil, and comes back to the country he deserted in her distress? Or what should be done with Allinson and the students of Northwestern College and Northwestern University who hissed the American Flag and pledged themselves never to defend their country? Was Christ a 'peace-at-any-price' kind of a man? If you want your red blood stirred come and hear these questions answered."

The subject for the sermon Sunday morning will be, "The Momentous Problems Solved by the Cross."
9:45 a. m. Sunday School service. It is of special interest that there should be a large attendance as some very

FEBRUARY MILK RECORD GOES TO McCORMICK COWS

Rock River Farm Near Byron Again Produced Most Milk.

By Associated Press Licensed Wire
 Urbana, March 28.—Duplicating its feat of the previous month, the Rock River Farm at Byron, Ogle county, owned by Senator Medill McCormick, produced the champion milk and butterfat producer for February among the 2,600 Illinois cows in the twenty-one county cow testing associations of the state, according to records compiled by C. S. Rhove, dairy extension specialist of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, who has charge of this work in the state.

A purebred Holstein in the dairy herd on the farm produced 2,185 pounds of milk and 93.1 pounds of fat during the month for first honors, he said.

George Mohrman, Morrison, Whiteside county, had the highest producing herd for that month, his 12 grade Holsteins each having produced an average of slightly more than 46 pounds of fat and 1,200 pounds of milk during the month.

Kane led all other counties of the state in the number of high producing individuals for the month with a total of four in the list of the ten highest producing cows for the state. Ogle county had three in this list of the ten to the state. Ogle county had three in this list of the ten highest producing individuals, DuPage two, and McLean one.

Ogle and DuPage took first honors among all other counties in the number of high producing herds for the month with three herds each among the ten highest producing ones. Whiteside, Warren, McHenry and Kane counties each had one high producing herd in the list of ten.

Owners of the ten highest producing cows for the month are:

Rock River Farm, Ogle county.
 O. E. Pritchard, Maple Park, Kane county.
 F. W. Wildmayer, Hampshire, Kane county.
 H. M. Wood, Delavan, McLean county.
 Sinsissippi Farm, Oregon, Ogle county.
 Harry Averill, Batavia, Kane county.
 Hyde Park Farm, Hinsdale, DuPage county.
 J. H. Burr, St. Charles, Kane county.

A. W. Abbott, Downers Grove, DuPage county.
 Owners of the ten highest producing herds for the month, together with the number and breed of the cows are as follows:

George Mohrman, Morrison, Whiteside county, 12 grade Holsteins.
 E. Y. Moberg, Monmouth, Warren county, 10 grade Holsteins.
 A. D. Cornug, Hebron, McHenry county, 18 purebred Holsteins.
 Harry Averill, Batavia, Kane county, 16 purebred and grade Holsteins.
 George Fahlhaber, Downers Grove, DuPage county, 11 purebred and grade Holsteins.
 Harry Davis, Oregon, Ogle county, 12 purebred and grade Holsteins.
 Kump and Estes, Oregon, Ogle county, 12 purebred and grade Holsteins.
 Brucknell Farm, Lombard, DuPage county, six purebred Ayrshire and grade Holsteins.
 A. W. Fisher, Bensenville, DuPage county, 25 purebred Holsteins.

Anti-Saloon Speaker at Amboy on Sunday

Sunday morning Miss Wintinger, a very talented lecturer and representative of the Anti-Saloon League of Illinois will speak on "The Present Phase of Prohibition" at the M. E. church in Amboy. Miss Wintinger visited Amboy in the same role before and delighted her audiences by her fairness and keen insight. She comes to us at a very opportune time in view of the approaching primaries. The prohibition situation will be presented without any party bias or favor.

FOR THE COUGH THAT STICKS
 Common Cough Syrups Won't Help — Make Your Own.
 Cheap and Best

For any kind of a cough, but especially for the stubborn one that resists and keeps you awake nights is home made cough mixture will likely loosen the phlegm, allay the inflammation and stop the cough. You can make it yourself at home in two minutes by following directions.

Get from Rowland Bros., or any druggist one ounce of Parment (double strength)—to this add a little granulated sugar and enough water to make one-half pint—bottle all over it, and children like it.

Like a soothing healing poultice a costly substance in this home made mixture spreads itself completely over the membrane of the throat, it causes the most stubborn cough to cease almost instantly, ordinary slow-acting cough syrups attain this expensive ingredient.

The Christians are jubilant over the fact that though they won but one match in the bowling tournament just completed they get second place in the final standings. The match won was that of last evening when they defeated the I. N. U. by 191 pins. The Christians have improved their game considerably lately and are now seeking new world's to conquer. They would also like another shot at the Hilway bunch and think if it can be arranged that it will be a close match.

Great Volley Ball Match This Evening

Tonight at 7:30 there is scheduled the biggest volleyball match of the season. At this time the team that went to Sterling and came back victorious will go up against the pick of all the rest of the volleyball players of Dixon. Manager Rawls is in charge of and is lining up the team that went to Sterling, while Capt. Potter is the boss of the other team. Everett Dutcher, chairman of the Physical Department Committee will referee the game.

THIS MEMORY'S FAILING

Everybody in the village knew Rastus Johnson and everybody talked to him. He was working one day for a member of the Ladies' Aid Society, and as he was about to go home, she said pleasantly: "I hear, Rastus, that you've seen the time when President Washington was in office. Is that true?" Rastus rolled the whites of his eyes and smiled a sad but reminiscent smile. "Well," he said, "ah used to seed it, but dat was befo' prohibition went into 'fect."—Los Angeles Times.

FRIDAY.
 Exalting the Golden Rule.

Read Mt. 7:21. Text: 7:12. All things therefore whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, even so do ye also unto them.

"God seems to have ordained that help shall often pass from himself to a man in need through another man, in order that in this way brotherhood may be built up in the world and men be bound together in a world unity. Being saved through believing on Jesus Christ involves also the vital righting of all social relationships, because in Jesus Christ is expressed God's great passion for a truly social life."

MEDITATION: Building the brotherhood is building the Kingdom of God. This is where life counts most. To be worthy of being built into the brotherhood we must be unselfish. This is the test of our value. Not what a man is worth to himself, but to others, determines whether or not he is worth saving.

PERSONAL QUESTION: How far is my life governed by the Golden Rule?

PRAYER: Our Heavenly Father, we pray that our lives may be more fruitful in good-will and charity. May we not go as pilgrims of a lonely way, but as a glad company of children of the light. May thy kingdom not seem unreal and far away, but may we together with all thy children, be partakers of thy spirit and sharers of thy grace, through Christ. Amen. (Copyright, 1924—F. L. Fagley.)

THE DEACON DECOY!
 A clergyman who occasionally substituted for a brother preacher in a remote country parish, was scandalized on observing the old deacon, who had been collecting the offering, quietly abstract a coin before presenting the plate at the altar rail.

After service he called the old man into the vestry and told him, with some emotion, that his crime had been discovered.

The deacon looked puzzled for a moment. Then a sudden light dawned on him.

"Why, sir, you don't mean that old dollar of mine? Why, I've led off with that for the last 15 years!"—People's Home Journal.

The judge, turning to a bailiff, said "Put this man in a dry cell."—Inland Merchant.

Branch Rickey is interested in more different ball clubs in more different leagues than Hughie Jennings has freckles.

Most of Rickey's ball players are different to . . . Much different from those you see on teams like the Giants and the Yankees. Maybe that's why you don't see pennants fluttering in St. Louis.

Is Holding His Own

"Ten years ago I received such wonderful help from your medicine for my stomach trouble that I have recommended it to hundreds of other sufferers. Recently a friend of mine whose brother in a distant city was stricken with acute indigestion and was not expected to live, got his brother to take a bottle on my advice. I have just received word that his brother was holding his own, and I am confident that May's Wonderful Remedy will entirely restore him." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. For sale at all druggists.—Adv.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Sallie Peck, employee of the Fair Deal Rye & Tan, quarrels with her policeman sweetie, Michael Curtis. That night Sallie goes into the back yard to take down a washing for Ma Brennan, with whom Sallie lives. A crash shakes the earth and something strikes Sallie a blow on the head.

When she regains consciousness the girl finds herself in strange surroundings, handsomely furnished. A French maid calls her Alva Copeland and Madame Copeland, a tall, richly gowned woman, claims her as her stepdaughter. Sallie is taken to meet Cousin Wheeler, who makes love to her.

The girl resolves to solve the mystery. She discovers that she is to be married, so she pretends to take the tablets given to her by keeps them in her hand. She steals down stairs and listens at the door of the room, where a conference is taking place.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"I listened. If the girl had not been hopelessly unconscious she would have heard her and then of course we—she would have been compelled to admit our mistake. It is safely over, however, and we have only the future to face."

"I don't know about that!" Sallie had recommenced his restless pacing back and forth and Sallie watched his shadow approach her and retreat through the crack in the door as though fascinated. "There's a possibility that we've none of us considered; it was only suggested to me by a chance remark of the girl's today but there was something in her tone I didn't like. It was when she had asked me about the wreck and I was telling her my version of it. She said: 'Suppose somebody else had found me and I'd walked up without being wise to who I was myself? I mightn't even be who people doped it out I was!' Well, to use her own language, are you sure you've got the right dope about her after all? Are you sure you know who the girl upstairs really is?"

"Preposterous!" Dr. Quarters exclaimed. "Didn't she attempt to enlist Miss Tidmarsh's aid today in getting away as soon as she realized she was being detained here?"

"Are you a coward, Wheeler?" The dominant tones of Mrs. Copeland broke in upon him. "We are playing for millions, remember—millions! Aren't the stakes worth the risk? We know who the girl is, upstairs. She shall be persuaded to accept our terms, gentlemen, and we'll play the game!"

CHAPTER V
 Michael's Quest

ON the same evening as that on which the conference was held in Mrs. Copeland's library and only a few hours earlier Ma Brennan sat in her kitchen a hundred miles away sunk in grief too deep for further tears and on the other side of the table Detective Sergeant Curtis rested his head on his hand and gazed unseeing into the warm glow of the stove.

A sympathetic chief had relieved him of duty for a day or two and he had gravitated to the little home on Roundhouse Lane, empty now of all save memories for him and the comradeship in misery of the old friend who alone could gauge the depth of his bereavement.

"Tis me should be where she's lying now!" Ma Brennan moaned for the hundredth time. "If I hadn't let her go an' take in that wash o' mine instead o' doin' it for myself you'd have her now with ye, Michael!"

Mike dropped his arm limply and raised his heavy head.

"Try not to think of it, Ma, that's the only way. I've got more to reproach myself with than you for she has gone from me in anger when the word that I was too proud to speak would have set everything right between us."

"She knows now, Michael; take comfort to yourself with that." Ma Brennan said gently. "The poor child didn't understand that a detective's sometimes got to do things in the line of duty that he can't explain to his sweetheart, no matter what her friends tell her about him. She understands now that you had to go trillin' after that Dorsey girl to get a line on the fellow she used to go with who stole the money from 'Emmery's store an' you couldn't speak till you'd got him safe in the lock-up, not even to Sallie herself. Michael, I—I've somethin' for ye. I would have give it to you last night, but after the funeral an' all I was afeared it would be too much for ye."

She rose grudgingly from the rocker and waddled across the room to an old-fashioned chest of drawers in the corner, and Mike's pain-filled eyes followed her in apathetic weariness. She stood with her back to him and he could see the broad ample shoulders heave in a noiseless sob while she fumbled with a little box she had taken from the top drawer.

"I don't want to see it or even know what it is if it's going to make you any more, Ma!" he declared. "If you're down sick who's there left to

MIKE DROPPED HIS ARM LIMPLY AND RAISED HIS HEAD.

He had struck the right note, for though the tears were rolling down her fat cheeks once more as she turned to him, Ma Brennan managed a faint, quivering little smile.

"Here, Michael. I cut it off her head for ye with me own two hands just before they closed the coffin, an' cruel quick they were to do it, too. . . . Take it, Ma!"

She turned away and Michael sat for long minutes staring down at the curd of bright shining hair which curled vibrantly about his fingers like the tendrils of a living vine.

Had Ma Brennan been watching she could not have helped noting the change which crept over the face of the young man, for trained detective as he was the shock was too great for concealment. She turned again only when the lamp on the table flared up suddenly to full flame and found him scrutinizing the lock of hair closely beneath the light. His cheeks were flushed.

"Thank you, Ma." His voice was husky with a rising excitement and his fingers trembled as he drew an envelope from his pocket and put the golden strand carefully away. "I can't tell you what you've done for me, giving me this! You cut it off—off Sallie's head yourself for me, you say?"

"I did that." She returned to the rocker, wiping her eyes on her stiff new black-bordered handkerchief. "There was little else to know her by, poor darlin', but the sunny hair of her, for the bit of nightgown an' wrapper had been burned away an'

an' you'd not have known her yourself, Michael! Thank God they'd sent ye to Philippias an' ye got back too late!"

He stifled the exclamation which rose to his lips and asked slowly: "It was as bad as that, then? It was only by her hair that you were able to identify her?"

"Yes, Michael." Preoccupied by her own grief Ma Brennan was still oblivious to the new note in his voice. "I was near crazed an' when at last I give up all hope of findin' her amongst the dead—most of the—the others were accounted for. I shall never forget it till my dyin' day!"

"Don't let's talk of it any more," he said soothingly. "Tell me again about that woman from the wreck who got in here and took those clothes of poor Sallie's."

"She did not mean to steal them, Michael, for one of the two fifty-dollar bills she left under the card on the dresser would've more than bought them new, an' Sallie would've been the first to give them to her an' not take a cent from God's rest her!"

"There's little to tell about that strange woman, me an' seel'n' hide no hair of her, but 'twas only a few minutes after the crash, when the wreck had first caught fire, that Iise Thoriksen seen her come staggerin' in the back door here with a singed blanket wrapped like a shawl over her head an' all 'round her, an' I guess whatever else she'd had on must ha' been burnt or torn off her for she left nothin' behind her here except that blanket. She was carryin' a fine black travelin' bag, though, Iise says, an' she must ha' let herself out the front door after dressin' up, for I found it unlocked, after. That's all I know, Michael. They'd brought me home tearin' me hair an' wallin' like a banshee, an' I'd ha' thought to go near Sallie's room if I hadn't smelt somethin' like wool an' molderin' an' it struck me maybe a spark had come in the windy an' caught fire. There was the money an' the card on the dresser, an' the blanket a fine mess on the floor where the woman had been thoughtf' enough to pour a pitcher of water over it, thanks be!"

"Seems funny, Ma; her not waitin' to find out who lived here and thank them for what she'd taken," Mike observed.

"Or even for a cup of tea, poor thing! She must ha' been needin' it bad, an' heaven knows she was welcome to it!" Ma Brennan sighed.

"'Twas only after—after I'd found Sallie an' everything was over, whilst the neighbors was helpin' me red up the house for the funeral an' I'd leave no one touch that room but myself, that I thought to see what the strange woman had helped herself to."

"What had she taken?" Mike persisted. "Are you sure you noticed everything that was gone?"

"Didn't I know every stitch the poor child had?" Ma Brennan retorted. "'Twas just underwear, an' a good pair of black silk stockings, an' the black patent leather sandals with the one heel loose; do you mind them, Michael?"

He nodded without speaking and she went on:

"The waist was a new little white silk one that you'd never seen but it was last year's brown cloth suit that she'd put on her, an' the little brown hat with the butterscups 'round the crown. That was all except the one pair o' white gloves that Sallie was sevin' for Easter an' a remnant of Georgette crepe she'd bought to make a saash of last year an' never used."

"What's this Georgette stuff, Ma? What color was it?"

"Whatever do ye want to know for?" She stopped her monotonous rocking to stare at him. "Sure, 'tis not like ye, Michael, to begrudge the things to a poor body in need, though I s'pose ye feel that two sweaters almost for a stranger to be touchin' Sallie's belongings is now! The Georgette was brown an' thin like a veil, an' it was as a veil she wore it, I'm thinkin'. Maybe her face was burnt, I dunno. I asked Frieda Schmidt about it for she seen her come in, too, but she'd caught no good look at her, bein' as she had her head all covered, like!"

S.S.S. keeps away Pimples

THERE are thousands of women who wonder why their complexions do not improve in spite of all the face treatments they use. They should not continue to wonder. Eruptions come from blood impurities and a lack of rich blood-cells. S. S. S. is acknowledged to be one of the most powerful, rapid and effective blood cleansers known. S. S. S. builds new blood-cells. This is why S. S. S. roots out of your system the impurities which cause boils, pimples, blackheads, acne, blotches, eczema, tetter, rash, S. S. S. is a remarkable flesh-builder. That's why underweight people can quickly build up their lost flesh, get back their normal weight, pink, plump cheeks, bright eyes, and "pep!"

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

QUOTES THE BIBLE.

There have been many original articles printed in the People's Column regarding the question of keeping our beautiful Dixon Theater open or closed on Sunday evenings. The following does not contain any original thoughts but is made up of a most entirely of Bible references and is humbly submitted.

"The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath; therefore the Son of Man is Lord also of the Sabbath."—Mark 2:27, 28.

The Pharisees, the religious leaders of the day placed more importance on keeping the Sabbath than in mercy and the needs of men.—Mat. 12:1-8.

A man might be approved of God, but if he did not keep the Sabbath according to their idea of it, deserved death. They condemned Jesus as worthy of death because He did not keep the Sabbath according to their notions. Jno. 5:18. Jesus here teaches first, that "The Sabbath was made for man" and therefore minute prescriptions as to the manner of observance should be subordinated to man's interests and necessities. Seems that He is "Lord, even of the Sabbath" that plainly affirming that He has authority to abrogate, change or modify it. As circumcision after the manner of Moses in Paul's day was a burning question so is the question of "ought we to keep the Sabbath," in our day. We find that the scriptures free us from the old yoke of bondage and clearly show the liberty we enjoy, where in Christ hath set us free. Gal. 5:1.

The old Sabbath law is plainly a Jewish practice. Deut. 5:12-15.

It is to be noted that in the Ten Commandments as given in Ex. 20:1-17, they apply specially to the Israelites. Eternal moral principles underlie them and we find every one of them except the Sabbath commandment, reaffirmed, by Jesus, in the new testament—which shows that this law was a law for Israel and not a law for future observance—and thus we know that the Mosaic law "engraved on the stones," which included the old Sabbath law is set aside. In Rom. 7:1-4 it is shown that Christians are become dead to the law of Moses through Christ.

The best proof of all came to us through the new commandment given us by Christ which is "that we all love one another. Jno. 13:34 and Jno. 13:35. "He that loveth his brother abideth in the light." 1 Jno. 3:22-23. Love not Sabbath keeping is law of Christ." Gal. 6:2.

Rom. 13:8-10. "Owe no man anything but to love one another; for he that loveth another, hath fulfilled the law. For this—

Thou shalt not commit adultery,

Thou shalt not kill,

Thou shalt not steal,

Thou shalt not bear false witness,

Thou shalt not covet; and if there be any other commandment it is briefly comprehending in the saying, namely, thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. Love worketh no ill to his neighbor, therefore—love is the fulfilling of the law."

Now it seems that Mr. Leonard G.

Rorer has as nearly as possible, loved his neighbors as himself and has fulfilled the law as religiously as he understood it in the past, by not let the future be taken care of in the same manner, with the added support of M. M.

ORIENTALS HARD LOSERS

Tokyo—It is very difficult for an Asiatic to grasp the idea of "losing with honor" or being "defeated but not disgraced," according to Prof. B. J. Wilden-Hart of the Imperial Japanese University. The old attitude of the fatalistic and feudalistic east, he says, was "win or die."

HARD WINTER ABROAD

Berlin—The unusually severe winter and its heavy snowfalls have, in many parts of Germany, driven wild game into the villages. It is not at all unusual to see grouse and other birds in the barnyards. Hares are common, and even deer occasionally make forays close to the houses.
